

Lotus Technology Showcases Autonomous Driving Progress at CES 2024

Jan 09, 2024

NEW YORK and SINGAPORE, Jan. 9, 2024 /PRNewswire/ -- Lotus Technology Inc. ("Lotus Tech" or the "Company"), a leading global luxury electric vehicle maker, announced today that its intelligent driving arm, Lotus Robotics, will showcase numerous proprietary next-generation autonomous driving software and hardware solutions at the 2024 Consumer Electronics Show (CES) in Las Vegas, USA.

The technologies on display, and Lotus Tech's recent receipt of approval to test conditional automated driving ("Level 3" or "L3") functions on highways in part of China, demonstrate Lotus Tech's progress in executing the brand's Vision80 business transformation strategy and further advancing its global R&D prowess.

The ROBO Soul, ROBO Matrix, and ROBO Galaxy software being showcased at CES provide solutions for advanced driver assistance systems, remotely assisted operation, and cloud data management respectively. The technologies have been employed in Lotus Tech vehicles, contributing to their autonomous driving capabilities. The hyper SUV Eletre and hyper GT Emeya, for example, both feature cutting-edge autonomous driving hardware, aviation-level security and redundancy including dual NVIDIA DRIVE Orin chips, as well as the Company's industry-leading cognition module, which can intelligently identify and avoid risks on the road. Lotus Robotics is also displaying hardware it is developing as part of efforts to accelerate adoption of self-driving technology, including its ROBOCube intelligent street cleaner.

In recognition of Lotus Tech's leadership in intelligent driving, the Company recently received approval to test L3 autonomous driving in Wuxi, a city near Shanghai serving as China's pilot zone for "internet of vehicles" connectivity. This licence allows Eletre drivers to use the vehicle's L3 functionality on designated highways in the city. Eletre is equipped with state-of-the-art L4-ready hardware including the world's first deployable LiDAR system, and leverages five different sensor types to supplement high-definition digital maps with live, 360° perception.

"Lotus Robotics' leading technologies bear testament to Lotus Tech's world-class R&D innovation capabilities and signify a significant step forward in our Vision80 strategy. We look forward to testing these innovative technologies on the roads in Wuxi as we strive to strengthen Lotus Tech's intelligent driving capabilities and deliver even better, safer driving experiences to our customers around the world," said Mr. Qingfeng Feng, Chief Executive Officer of Lotus Tech.
